MONDA' EVENING JAN 11, 1897

No Talking In Paris Theaters. "Talk about disturbing the audience of a theater," remarked a gentleman yesterday, "you ought to see how particular they are in Paris. No such free and easy ways as those tolerated here are submitted to in that city. I remember attending a matinee a few years ago with a friend, also an American. It was Saturday afternoon, and the theater, which was not one of the highest priced, was crowded. We got good seats, and all went well until I made some sotto voice remarks to my companion. I spoke in a low tone and one which would have disturbed nobody in this country. But you ought to have seen how those French men and women looked at us. We were transfixed at once by a dozen pairs of angry eyes, and the man who sat next to us clinched matters by exclaiming aloud, 'Monsieur, voulez vous taire?' This was only a shade politer than 'Will you shut up, sir?' and he meant it. took the hint, and we shut up for the rest of the matinee."-Exchange. Card by the Bushel.

The Washington Star says that Chief Justice Fuller, in talking to a senator the other day, said playfully: "There is a great deal of unnecessary waste in the matter of visiting cards indulged in by the women of our families. I know that when we moved into our new house there was a bushel basket of cards from the women of your household, and I am sure that if you took the trouble to look them up you would find an equal amount from mine. Now, I propose that we collect these bits of pasteboard and send them back to their respective starting points, and I am sure we shall be in pocket to a considerable extent."

Saturday Washday.

Every Saturday at certain back yards in the city the family wash may be seen hanging out to dry. The practice of observing Saturday as washday is due to the old fashtoned and peculiar method of reasoning of some housekeepers. "You see," says one of them, "if the washing is done on Saturday then the ironing can be done on Monday, and the whole thing is out of the way early in the week."-New York

Red clover blossoms are indicative of industry. A writer on floral curiosities says that this notion was suggested by the humblebees, which particularly frequent this plant, the common bees not being able, by reason of the depth of the flower, to reach its honey.

In 929, during the reign of Athelstan, a crown was made for that sovereign very similar to the coronet now worn by English earls.
